

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS OF EXCELLENCE

1968	Don Hayden Rose and Edessa Ro Local Government. Alan Heslop i
1972 •	Heslop writes a memorandum to local government at CMC.	CMC President Jack Stark prop	osing an institute of state and
1973 •	CMC establishes the Institute of	State and Local Government. H	eslop is named first director.
1974 •	Edessa Rose pledges a large gift Institute does not receive the Ro without a substantial endowmen	se gift until 1987 and thus oper
	Rose Institute creates the Califor demographic and political databa		comprehensive statewide
	Rose Institute assumes responsible the publication of a biennial report two decades.
1975	First Council for the Rose Institu	te (later named the Board of Go	vernors) includes:
	Charles G. Bakaly, Jr.Robert H. FinchWilliam R. GrantDonald A. HenriksenJohn T. Knox	Jon LovelaceBilly G. MillsGeorge D. NickelJohn O'KeefeRay Remy	Edessa RosePete WilsonMildred Younger
1976	Florence Adams joins the Rose Ir assistant (1980-1984), assistant
1979 •	The California Roundtable and se to support the Institute's redistric
•	Richard Santillan and Armando N to represent Latino interests in th to co-sponsor redistricting confe redistricting research and produc Chicano/Hispanic Reapportionm	ne 1980s redistricting process. C rences and uses Rose Institute c te maps. Santillan becomes direc	FR works with the Rose Institute lata and computers to conduct
	Rose Institute completes the first	t court-approved redistricting of	Mississippi.
	Political scientist and redistricting Institute and the Institute publish		association with the Rose
	Rose Institute creates the REDIS redistricting projects in California basement of CMC's Bauer Center	a and other states, and establishe
	Rose Institute publishes Reapport	tionment Commissions by Dr. Fred	d Balitzer.
	Political internships program esta	ablished in Sacramento, supporte	ed by ARCO.
	Rose Institute collaborates with A plants and offices nationwide, co		gressional decision making at ARCO d James Pinter-Lucke.

1980 •	Rose Institute becomes a central redistricting player in California and other states. The Institute issues several publications on the redistricting process and holds two major redistricting conferences, including a two-day conference titled Redistricting: Shaping Government for A Decade , with representatives from 16 states and former President Gerald R. Ford as keynote speaker. The Institute increases professional and student staff to build capacity for redistricting work and attracts extensive media coverage for its redistricting activities.
•	Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan visits CMC, hosted by the Rose Institute.
•	Rose Institute moves into offices in Adams Hall.
1981 •	Rose Institute critiques the California Legislature's partisan districting plans and proposes alternatives. In the midst of the controversy, Assembly Speaker Willie Brown quips, "I am negotiating with the Israeli Air Force about visiting Claremont to wipe out the Rose Institute."
•	Robert Walters is named Director of Computing and becomes instrumental in managing the Institute's databases and sophisticated computers (donated by Hewlett-Packard).
•	Rose Institute publishes The Political Geography of California by T. Anthony Quinn.
•	Rose Institute representatives help draft Proposition 14, a statewide measure that would have removed redistricting authority from the legislature and created a redistricting commission. The measure qualifies for the ballot but is defeated in the 1982 election.
•	Edessa Rose dies at age 78.
1983 •	Jonathan Applebaum '83 is selected as the Institute's first student manager. The student manager system is used intermittently until it is formalized in 1991-92.
	Rose Institute student Henry Olsen '83 takes the lead in drawing maps to replace the legislature's districting plans through a ballot measure called the Sebastiani Initiative. The California Supreme Court blocks the measure from reaching the ballot in Legislature v. Deukmejian (1983).
1984 •	In collaboration with UC Irvine professor Mark Baldassare, the Rose Institute completes a survey of opinion leaders for the Orange County Transportation Commission, part of an on-going partnership with Dr. Baldassare.
1986 •	Rose Institute publishes Carving Up California : A History of Redistricting 1951-1984 by T. Anthony Quinn.
•	Robert W. Howard '55 is named chair of the Board of Governors, replacing Donald A. Henriksen.
1987	Rose Institute publishes Juvenile Justice Reform : A Model for the States by Professor (and future director) Ralph Rossum, the culmination of a two-year research project supported by a major grant from the U.S. Department of Justice.
	Supported by a grant from the Ford Foundation, the Rose Institute's Latino Project begins extensive study of California's Latino population. This work will include the first statewide public opinion poll of Latinos, a study of Latino voluntary organizations, and a study of California's Latino-run businesses, and the publication of an Atlas of California's Latino Communities .
1988	Rose Institute conducts its first exploratory studies of the Inland Empire, which later becomes a primary focus of its research.
•	Armando Navarro replaces Richard Santillan as director of the Latino Project.
	A Study of California Initiatives 1976-1986 is published.
1989	The Rose Institute hosts two day-long conferences on redistricting in California, bringing in experts on redistricting from both parties, as well as politicians from across the state and at all levels of government.

Alan Hesiop and Leroy Hardy advocate for two propositions on the June ballot. 116 and 115, which want bises whitest the reside did gross as way from the logisture. Both measures are defeated, Hesiop also takes a prominent role in promoting Proposition 140 on the November ballot, which succeeds in establishing term limits in California. Redistricting work increases at the local level as some cities move from at-large to district elections. Pearons hards the November ballot, which succeeds in establishing term limits in California. Brody Birtcher '75 becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose institute remains active in drawing district lines for jurisdictions including the City of Phoenix, AZ. Latino Studies Project hosse Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform. The People of California's Analysis of California's Latino Studies in Latino Studies Project hosses Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform. The People of California's Analysis of California's Chinese American (1993), Filipino (1993), and African American (1994) communities. Seeve Institute John Studies Project, Indeed by the Ford Toundation (1994) communities. Seeve Institute (1993), Filipino (1993), and African American (1994) communities. Seeve Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s; A 50-State Survey, edited by Leroy Clardy, Alan Hesiop, and Carage Plain; California K 19 school funding, and state funding of county governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s; A 50-State Survey, edited by Leroy Clardy, Alan Hesiop, and Carage Plain. Rose Institute updates its survey california in Education of Covernors approves a new mission subtractic calling for the institute to shift its base to four areas of Southern California (the San Carage Plain). Rose Institute progress and analysis, survey research, and hocal analysis. Play of the American California Carage Plain (Carage County, and San Deeglo and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey servey research, and hocal p	S	1990 •	Rose Institute hosts Time to Draw the Lines conference to consider how to support underrepresented groups in the redistricting process, as well as advocate for redistricting reform. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting Reform: An Action Package as part of its ongoing efforts to promote redistricting reform.
Periona hiris the Rose Institute to draw its fines following the enlargement of its city council. Brandy Birtcher '76 becomes chair of Board of Covernors. Rose Institute remains active in drawing district lines for jurisdictions including the City of Phoenix, A./. Latino Studies Project hosts Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform. The People of California An Alias of California's Latino Communities is published, the first of several reports focusing on California's changing dramography. Subsequent publications include an atlas of South Certal Los Angeles, funded by the Ford Foundation (1992) and Latinos California's Chinese American (1993). Filipino (1993), and African American (1996) communities. 1993 Steve Frates '69 becomes a Rose Institute follow, directing fiscal analysis projects. Under Frates' supervision, the Institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angeles, Los Angeles County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of country governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishos Bedistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, edited by Lorny Hardy, Alan Heslop, and George Blain. 1994 Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Covernors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute is shift to Incust for four areas of surface and students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. 1995 Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Government in Orange County, the first major study of government editions in Orange County Itolowing its 1994 bankmiptry filing. Rose Institute updates its survey corter with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute affinited members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel F			which would have shifted the redistricting process away from the legislature. Both measures are defeated. Heslop also takes a prominent role in promoting Proposition 140 on the November ballot,
Rose Institute remains active in drawing district lines for jurisdictions including the City of Phoenix, AZ. Latino Studies Project hosts Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform. The People of California An Atias of California's Latino Communities is published, the first of several reports focusing on California's changing demography. Subsequent publications include an adas of South Gentral Ibs Angeles. Innied by the Ford Foundation (1992) and etitises of California's Chinese Amorican (1993), Filipino (1993), and African American (1996) communities. Sieve Frates '69 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, directing fiscal analysis projects. Under Frates' supervision, the Institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angelos, Los Angelos County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of country governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, cdited by Loroy Hardy, Alan Heisipp, and George Blair. Pollowing a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Covernors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four arcses of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Dilego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. 1995 Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Covernment in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headests, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional charges. Jointly appointed by Covernor Pele Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute and Institute of local jurisdictions including San Diega County Public
Latino Studies Project hosts Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform. The People of California: An Atlas of California's Latino Communities is published, the first of several reports focusing on California's Changing demography. Subsequent publications include an allas of South Central Los Angeles, funded by the Ford Foundation (1792) and allases of California's Chinese American (1993). Filipino (1993), and African American (1996) communities. Steve Frates '69 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, directing fiscal analysis projects. Under Frates' suspension, the Institute Will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angeles, Los Angeles County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of county governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, edited by Loroy Hardy, Alan Fickslop, and George Blair. Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Roard of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to focus areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Fompire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. 1995 Rose Institute reclases report: Costs of Government in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute apdates its survey conter with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute Policy County; Los Ang		•	Brandy Birtcher '76 becomes chair of Board of Governors.
The People of California: An Atlas of California's Latino Communities is published, the first of several reports focusing on California's changing demography. Subsequent publications include an atlas of South Central Los Angelos, funded by the Ford Foundation (1992) and atlases of California's Chinese American (1993), Hilpino (1993), and African American (1996) communities. 1993 Steve Frates '69 becomes a Rose Institute follow, directing fiscal analysis projects. Under Frates' supervision, the institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angelos, Los Angelos County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of county governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, cdited by Leroy I lardy, Alan Helslop, and George Blair. Rose Institute receives a major grant for GiS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. 1995 Rose Institute recleases report: Costs of Government in Cronge County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptey filing. Rose Institute updates its survey conter with new telephones, headests, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute Polic		1991	Rose Institute remains active in drawing district lines for jurisdictions including the City of Phoenix, AZ.
reports focusing on California's changing demography. Subsequent publications include an atlas of South Central Los Angeles, funded by the Ford Foundation (1992) and atlases of California's Chinese American (1993), Filipino (1993), and African American (1996) communities. Steve Frates '69 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, directing fiscal analysis projects. Under Frates' supervision, the Institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angeles, Cos Angeles County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of county governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, edited by Leroy Hardy, Alan Heslop, and George Blair. Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. 1995 Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Covernment in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute and Component and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Sleve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. Part California Constitutional Revision Commission including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Dieg		•	Latino Studies Project hosts Latino Statewide Summit on Education Reform.
supervision, the Institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angeles, Los Angeles Country, Orange Country, Colifornia K-12 school funding, and state funding of country governments, among many other projects. Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in the 1980s: A 50-State Survey, edited by Leroy Hardy, Alan Heslop, and George Blair. 1994 Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange Country, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Government in Orange Country, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange Country following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute valuates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. 1996-98 Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors.			reports focusing on California's changing demography. Subsequent publications include an atlas of South Central Los Angeles, funded by the Ford Foundation (1992) and atlases of California's Heslop, and George Blair. Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software. Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Government in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute and Institute and The Rose Institute. A page of the Rose Institute and The Rose Rose Institute and Monterey County. Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors.		1993 •	supervision, the Institute will conduct fiscal analyses of the City of Los Angeles, Los Angeles County, Orange County, California K-12 school funding, and state funding of county governments, among Following a lengthy self-study, the Rose Institute Board of Governors approves a new mission statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Vailley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Government in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors.
statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of demographic analysis, survey research, and fiscal analysis. Rose Institute releases report: Costs of Government in Orange County, the first major study of government efficiency in Orange County following its 1994 bankruptcy filing. Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute and Talifated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. 1996-98 Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. 1998 David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors.		1994	Rose Institute receives a major grant for GIS equipment and software.
Rose Institute updates its survey center with new telephones, headsets, and survey software. Over the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. 1996 The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report . It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in			statement calling for the Institute to shift its focus to four areas of Southern California (the San Gabriel Valley, the Inland Empire, Orange County, and San Diego) and to train students in the use of the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of the Institute's work. The California Constitutional Revision Commission issues its final report proposing several state constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report . It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in		1995 constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and Gary Hunt. 1996-98 Budget studies conducted for local jurisdictions including San Diego County Public School Districts; San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report . It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in			the next decade, surveys for businesses and local governments will be an important component of San Diego City, San Diego County; Los Angeles County; and Monterey County. Marionette Moore joins Rose Institute as administrative assistant, and will later be named administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in 		1996 •	constitutional changes. Jointly appointed by Governor Pete Wilson (a former member of the Rose Institute Board of Governors) and the legislature, the commission includes several Rose Institute-affiliated members, including Alan Heslop, Steve Frates, Joel Fox, George Babikian, and administrative coordinator. Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report . It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010. David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in	199	06-98
 David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow, focusing on project development and management. Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in 		1997
Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in		•	Rose Institute publishes first issue of The Rose Report. It is renamed The Rose Review in 2010.
Allan Lunsford becomes chair of Board of Governors. Rose Institute organizes a conference on transportation policy, the first of several conferences in		1008	David Huntoon '65 becomes a Rose Institute fellow focusing on project development and management
		1999 •

S	2000 •	Alan Heslop completes tenure as director. Ralph A. Rossum is named director.
	2001	Rose Institute organizes Time to Draw the Lines redistricting conference.
	2001	Nose institute organizes time to Diaw the Lines redistricting conference.
		Douglas Johnson '92 becomes a Rose Institute fellow. He will assist with research projects and student training in demographic analysis, GIS, and voting rights and redistricting law.
	2002	Rose Institute publishes analysis of Schwarzenegger After School Initiative (Proposition 49 of 2002).
	•	Initial Kosmont-Rose Institute Cost of Doing Business Survey published. The Institute will continue to produce the Kosmont-Rose Institute Survey regularly for more than two decades.
	2003 •	Rose Institute organizes three conferences in 2003-2004 on the theme of Governing California in the Twenty-First Century. The conferences result in a 2004 report presenting model reforms to establish an independent redistricting commission, an open primary system, a cap on state spending, and a limited legislature.
	2004	Rose Institute provides funding for California Politics class trip to Sacramento and will continue to support the trip in coming years.
	2005	Leroy Hardy donates to the Rose Institute his extensive book collection and redistricting archive.
6 1		Richard Burnweit '72 donates to the Rose Institute a comprehensive biographical database of California legislators and other elected officials, known as the Burnweit Database. The Rose Institute later receives a grant from the John Randolph Haynes Foundation to help organize the database.
	•	Rose Institute Academy for Civic Engagement hosts conference for city council members, mayors, city managers, on topics including housing, transportation, government finance, economic development, and water.
	2006	Rose Institute is awarded a grant from the Haynes Foundation to establish a California Political History Archive and Database.
	2007	Darryl Wold '63 is elected chair of Board of Governors.
		Rose Institute is commissioned to conduct fiscal analysis studies for Southern California Edison that will continue until 2009.
		Rose Report online blog launched.
	2008	Board member Buzz Woolley '59 and Girard Foundation sponsor summer partnership with Voice of San Diego . VOSD publishes research produced by a student team led by Ilan Wurman '09.
		Rose Institute celebrates its 35th Anniversary with a gala luncheon in Sacramento. First Rose Award for Excellence in Public Service is presented to Elizabeth G. Hill (2008). Subsequent awards honor Richard R. Oliphant (2010), Raymond Remy (2012), Kirk West (2014), Jane Pisano (2016), and Zev Yaroslavsky (2019).
		Rose Institute publishes Los Angeles County Business Climate Survey for LAEDC.
	2009	Associate Director Florence Adams retires; Professor Ken Miller becomes associate director.
		Rose Institute hosts conference on the 2010 Census and redistricting.
		Miller-Rose Institute Initiative Database is created to provide an online summary of all voter- approved state citizen initiatives in the United States and post-election legal challenges to those measures.
		Rose Institute joins Twitter.

S	2010	Rose Institute and Lowe Institute establish Inland Empire Center (IEC), with David Huntoon '65 coordinating programs. IEC forms a partnership with UCLA Anderson Forecast and Citizens Business Bank to host Inland Empire Economic Forecast conferences throughout the decade.
	•	First issue of the Inland Empire Outlook is published.
	•	Rose Institute publishes Redistricting in America: A State-by-State Analysis , authored by Douglas Johnson '92, Ian Johnson '09, and David Meyer '12.
		Ralph Rossum completes tenure as director. Andrew E. Busch is named director, with his term beginning January 1, 2011.
	2011	Bipasa Nadon is named assistant director for publications and research.
	•	Rose Institute moves from Adams Hall to offices in the newly-opened Kravis Center.
	•	Leroy Hardy Library is dedicated in new Rose Institute offices.
	•	Rose Institute creates a new Athenaeum Speaker Series. Rose-sponsored speakers will include Governors Tom Ridge, Susana Martinez, and Steve Bullock '88; Representatives Kevin McCarthy, Tom Campbell, and Lois Capps; Assembly Speakers Robert Hertzberg and John Perez; and California Supreme Court Justice Mariano Florentino Cuéllar; as well as other government officials, academics, and journalists from across the political and ideological spectrum.
	•	Redistricting in America website, created under the direction of Mike Whatley '11, receives widespread media coverage.
	2012 •	Rose Institute presents its first Video Voter Guide , a non-partisan video analysis of California statewide ballot propositions. The Video Voter Guide program will become a prominent Rose Institute project over the next decade, with Bob Stern and Nicolas Heidorn '06 providing supervision.
	2013	Rose Institute receives donation of archive from retired House Rules Committee Chairman David Dreier '75 and assists with creation of Dreier Roundtable at CMC.
	•	Board of Governors establishes the Rose Institute Alumni Society and names Jacinth Sohi '11 president of the society.
	2014	Senior Fellow David Huntoon dies. Feeling his absence, the Institute develops a model that relies less heavily on contract projects.
	2015	New hire training program formalized, with Jessica Jin '16 as the first new hire manager.
	2016	Rose Institute publishes a series of reports on the criminal justice system as part of a research program supervised by CMC Professor Joseph Bessette and APU Professor Jennifer Walsh.
	•	Rose Institute teams supervised by Andrew Busch begin producing reports on federalism. Reports will assess the balance between federal and state powers in the areas including public education, marijuana legalization, immigration, and, later, the response to the Covid 19 pandemic.
		Rose Institute publishes study on the "quiet revolution" of California city governments' transition to district based elections in response to the California Voting Rights Act.
	2017	Protestors block access to the Rose Institute-sponsored Athenaeum talk by Heather MacDonald. Director Busch issues a statement defending academic freedom and free speech.
		Ray Remy '59 is elected chair of the Board of Governors.
	2019	Grace Moe donates publications, research papers, and lecture notes of Ronald Moe '59.
		Board of Governors Chair Ray Remy dies at age 82. Ryder Todd Smith becomes acting chair and is elected chair in 2021.

	2020-21	Response to the pandemic forces Rose Institute to operate remotely for 17 months.
	2020	CMC-Rose Institute polling program is established under leadership of Professor Andrew Sinclair '08.
	2021	Andrew Busch completes tenure as director. Kenneth P. Miller is named director and Don H. and Edessa Rose Professor of State and Local Government.
		Rose Institute forms new Board of Faculty Advisors consisting of Professors Andrew Busch, Michael Fortner, Emily Pears '08, Shanna Rose, and Andrew Sinclair '08.
	2022	First CMC-Rose Institute national poll is conducted in collaboration with YouGov. Poll produces two reports, Red States vs. Blue States and Battleground Pennsylvania .
		Rose Institute redesigns the Kosmont-Rose Institute Survey and includes data on business migration out of California.
	2023	Housing policy conference co-hosted with the Olson Company, featuring former Governor Gray Davis, state lawmakers, and local officials.
CV		Survey commissioned by the California City Manager Foundation (CCMF) produces the first comprehensive profile of California's city managers.
	•	Rose Institute publishes a report commissioned by TogetherSF outlining potential structural reforms to San Francisco government. Nicolas Heidorn '06 leads work on the report and Abhi Nemani '10 joins team to continue analysis of potential reforms.
		Todd Stevens P'18 P'24 P'26 donates historical maps of California to CMC and several are displayed at the Rose Institute.

Rose Institute celebrates its 50th Anniversary.

